FANATIC IN TENNESSEE ATTACK

FIND BODY OF EVERETT GIRL

HILDRED PARKER DEAD

The body of fifteen-year-old Hildred Parker, who had been missing since Saturday night from her home, No. 30 Chatham road, Everett, was found today in the pool at the old Coleman quarry pit between Union and Chelsea streets, East Everett, within five minutes after the police began to grapple for it.

After a preliminary examination of the body at Henderson's undertaking rooms in Everett square Medical Examiner Charles D. McCaffery of Somerville said he noticed no marks of violence or other signs of foul play.

But he would not undertake, until after an autopsy, which he said he would hold this afternoon, to say whether death was due to accidental drowning, to suicide by drowning or to more sinister cause.

SCOUT SUICIDE THEORY.

The girl's clothing was slightly disarranged and slightly torn. The police said that this might be no more than would happen where a body had been at the bottom of a trap-rock quarry pool for several days wearing against the rough bottom of the pit.

In the absence so far of direct signs of foul play the suicide theory was given much attention. But Byron Parker, the girl's heart-broken father, said:

"I doubt if Hildred committed suicide. Her home life was one of contentment. I would stake my life that there was no domestic reason for drowning herself. I wish the case investigated to the limit. The suspense since Hildred disappeared Saturday night has been terrible."

Mr. Parker searched with a lantern around the edges of the Coleman pit Saturday night at midnight and again Sunday morning. The last known of Hildred was at 10:15 Saturday night. She was then seen at the corner of Union street and Chatham road, not far from her home. If she met death in the quarry pit soon after that her body was in the water at the very time when her worried father was making his search by lantern light around the edge of the pit, calling vainly for the girl who could not hear.

On the other hand, those who lean toward the suicide theory point to the fact that the girl was at an emotional age; also that she had been feeling ill for a day or two, although her general health had been good of late.

BAD MONEY WITH HER.

The motive of robbery, to explain a possible attack on the girl, was eliminated when the medical examiner found in the pocket of her long, brown cloak her girlish wage for working Saturday night—seventy cents. Hildred put in her Saturday evening at a five and ten-cent store on Everett square to get a little spending money. She had been paid just before she left the store at 10 o'clock that night and the change was found intact.

When Dr. McCaffery brought this little sum out and handed it to Mr. Parker the father broke down.

POOL OF DEATH.

One result of the tragedy will probably be the filling-in or at least the fencing-off of the deadly quarry pool. This is the seventh body taken from there in the past few years.

When the news of the finding of the body spread through East Everett indignation rose and grew that the pool was still allowed to be an open menace. Mothers, especially, protested that the pool must be filled in. There was much talk today of calling an indignation meeting.

The body of Mildred was recovered at 9:35 by Patrolmen Crocker and O'Gara. They had a rowboat, brought overland from Maldon River. O'Gara rowed and Crocker worked the grapples.

The quick recovery of the body was due to Crocker's knowledge of the pit. He had recovered the last three of the six bodies previously found there. These three were all found about twenty feet from the Chelsea street side of the pool, in about fifteen feet of water. Crocker thinks

Bringing the body of Hildred Parker ashore, after it had been recovered today with grappling irons at Coleman's quarry pool, Everett. Search of the pool by Everett police for the girl missing since Saturday was quickly rewarded.

NURSE ACCUSES DOCTOR DUDLEY

HOULTON, Me., Nov. 19.—Katherine Michaud, the nurse who testified today efore the Grand Jury which is investigating the disappearance and death of Mildred Sullivan, "Prettiest Girl in Aroostook," said the authorities that Dr. Lionel E. Dudley, now accused of the girl's murder, exclaimed after he had treated the girl:

"My God, I have killed her."

This was the sensational development in the case today. It followed close on the heels of the news that Dr. Dudley and Alice Pelletier, whom they were arrested in Boston, were planning to marry and go West. This was the assertion of Ruth Devenney, the Cambridge stenographer who testified before the Grand Jury.

Katherine Michaud repeated her confession before the Grand Jury today. She expects immunity in return for telling her story.

County Attorney Archibald declined to state what he will do with Miss Michaud's case. Many think she may be indicted on a minor charge, while others predict that she will go free. Her confession, however, is said to be of such a character that the prosecution must let

President to Eat Turkey with Sayres

WASHINGTON, Nov. 19.—President Wilson will spend Thanksgiving Day with his daughter, Mrs. Francis Bowes Sayre, at Williamstown, Mass. He will leave Washington Wednesday and may stay at Williamstown for several days. The stork is expected to visit Mrs. Sayre in the near future.

Rescue Girl from Slavery Agent at Pier

BROCKTON, Nov. 19.—Miss Charlotte Bowman, secretary of the Ione Y. W. C. A., is being congratulated for starting the search that led to the rescue of Bertha Cook, an orphan of fifteen, from a woman agent of white slavers.

When the girl, who came here from Plymouth, was reported missing, Miss Bowman telephoned to the Providence association for assistance. A detective was employed in that city and found the woman and girl just as they were to board a boat for New York. The woman escaped in the crowd.

The girl met the woman recently in a local store. She says the woman offered her pretty clothes and a pleasant home if she would be her companion. The girl has been sent back to the Y. W. C. A. here.

Funds and Letters Help Christmas Basket Plans

Mrs. Benjamin P. Cheney (Julia Arthur) gave quick endorsement today to the AMERICAN'S "Give a Basket" plan to provide a real Christmas for Boston's poor families.

The former stage star, whose sympathetic nature was one of her great dramatic assets, added her praise and contribution to those coming from every side.

Boston merchants, bankers, public men—some of national prominence, commend the "Give a Basket" plan, as a splendid and enterprising scheme.

Mrs. Cheney said:

"This 'Give a Basket' fund is a splendid thing. I heartily endorse it and shall be pleased to send you my contribution."

The AMERICAN gives one hundred dollars to the fund. This is in addition to the one thousand dollars which Mr. Hearst has given in New York to the fund being raised by his newspapers.

Mayor Curley says charity begins at home and the AMERICAN'S plan to help needy Bostonians is "a much-needed work."

Men of such prominence as ex-Governor John D. Long, ex-Governor John L. Bates, ex-Mayor John F. Fitzgerald and ex-Congressman Joseph H. O'Neil, banker; J. Otis Wardwell, lawyer; Samuel J. Elder, member of The Hague Peace Tribunal; Sherman L. Whipple, lawyer—such men of large affairs have taken the time to tell the AMERICAN by word or letter of their deep approval of the idea and their desire to contribute.

LETTERS ENDORSE PLAN.

In fact, the letters and statements from public and private citizens tell the story of instant popularity eloquently.

President Joseph H. O'Neil of the Federal Trust Company writes:

Christmas Editor, AMERICAN:

Sir—Your plan to "Give a Basket" to the deserving poor at Christmas time should appeal to everyone who is more fortunately situated than "the hungry, the lonesome, the forgotten." I am glad to be able to contribute and enclose enough to pay for five baskets.

Yours truly,
JOSEPH H. O'NEIL.

Here is a letter from an unknown giver, one of many anonymous ones:

Christmas Editor, AMERICAN:

Sir—I enclose $10. Please apply it as you wish—either for a Christmas basket or for the

REPORT VICTORY FOR RUSSIAN BALTIC FLEET

Three German warships have been sunk by a Russian fleet in a battle in the Baltic Sea, according to unofficial cable dispatches today.

A Rome news agency dispatch from Petrograd says that the German squadron which bombarded Libau was later attacked by the Russian fleet, and that in the fight which followed a German cruiser and two torpedo boat destroyers were sunk.

A previous dispatch from Libau to the London Mail declared that a German cruiser struck a mine and was sunk during the bombardment.

In the shelling of Libau, it is announced, several factories were damaged, a number of cargo steamers sunk and five persons, including one woman, killed.

Strong intimations have come to Washington, according to dispatches today, that the shots fired at the launch of the cruiser Tennessee at Smyrna were the work of an irresponsible fanatic.

The administration hoped this was true. The intimations were that the regular Turkish officials left Smyrna some time ago.

Germany, in particular, is anxious to smother over the incident, and is laying before the State Department every scrap of information she received from Constantinople to obviate any necessity for reprisals.

While President Wilson is determined that under no circumstances shall the United States be involved in war with Turkey, he is equally determined, according to Washington dispatches, that a full explanation of the firing upon the United States flag shall be made.

Such an explanation will surely be forthcoming, the dispatches predict. Ambassador Henry Morgenthau of Constantinople has been directed to secure the explanation at once.

The latest dispatches indicate that the Tennessee sent a launch from Vurla toward Smyrna, either to convey the United States Consul to Smyrna or to visit the consulate, and that Turkish forts fired either one or three shots, with the result that the launch put back to the Tennessee.

Dispatches today from Athens deny absolutely the first report that Captain Decker of the Tennessee sent a wireless to the Turkish authorities, telling them that he had been ordered to enter the port and intended to do so. The Athens dispatch says:

"Captain Decker won new renown for the American navy by the manner in which he met the crisis. Where some naval officers might have given shot for shot, Captain Decker communicated at once with Ambassador Morgenthau and on the advice of the Ambassador proceeded to Chios with his vessel."

The Athens dispatch also said that American Consuls have been asked to protect Greek subjects in Turkey.

Official Washington believes that, if the Turkish officers acted without authority of the Ottoman government and the firing was not justified by naval procedure in a closed port, the Ottoman government will render apology.

Two suggestions were vouchsafed by high officials, although they admitted that their views were purely speculative. The firing, they thought, probably was a friendly act, giving the customary warning by a single shot, signifying to the Tennessee's launch that the port of Smyrna was mined and closed, or else

1913 SIEGEL BOSTON PROFIT WAS MILLION

GENESEE, N. Y., Nov. 19.—A profit of $1,025,000 was cleared by Siegel-Boone store for the year ending January 31, 1914, according to the testimony of James Wood, who was called again today when the trial of Henry Siegel was resumed. To Mr. Stanchfield, counsel for Siegel, witness assisted determination of stock in the Boston store at the end of 1912 of $350,000.

Ship of Mystery Seen Off Cape Cod

A mysterious craft, thought to be a British converted cruiser, has been hovering off Cape Cod since daylight and has started a list of conjecture in shipping circles. The steamer has two funnels and is painted the conventional battleship grey from waterline to smokestack.

She was first sighted off Provincetown and was apparently making for the harbor entrance. Later she was observed off Wood End. The life savers at that point signalled her, but received no answering signal. Shortly after 9 a. m. she headed for Boston. Captain Dodge of the Merchants & Miners liner Gloucester, in today from Norfolk, saw the mysterious vessel off Race Point at 7 a. m. but made no attempt to communicate with her. At 11 a. m. she was observed from Pace Point, heading out to sea. That is the thought to be the Cunard liner Caronia, a 20,000 ton ship, formerly in the Boston and Liverpool service of the Cunard line.

CARNEGIE SAYS HE DOUBTS HE'LL GO TO HEAVEN

NEW YORK, Nov. 19. — Andrew Carnegie said yesterday that he hoped to get to heaven through his attempts to be of service to his fellow men, but that he had his doubts about it. He made the statement before the Trustees of the Carnegie Foundation at their ninth annual meetings in the Foundation offices at 576 Fifth avenue. All of the twenty-four members of the board attended, except Frank A. Vanderlip, president of the National City Bank, who was ill.

"In this dark hour of civilization when so large a part of humanity is engaged in tearing down what has been done," said Mr. Carnegie, "when even the university teachers of various countries lend their names to a program of destruction, it is comforting to have a body of men, drawn from all parts of the United States and Canada, giving their best thinking to the effort to build up, not to destroy, to conserve, not to tear down.

"I am glad to have had the privilege of starting an agency like the Carnegie Foundation, whose mission is constructive, not destructive. If I ever get to heaven, and I have my doubts about it, I should hope it might be on the ground that I had tried to be of some service to my fellow men."

Year Sentence for Donald Cameron

Forty-six Canadian Soldiers Rejected

GLASGOW, Scotland, Nov. 19.—Forty-six soldiers of the Canadian expeditionary force, who had been rejected, presumably on account of German or Austrian nationality, sailed on a Donaldson liner for home today. They were brought here from Salisbury, England, under an armed escort, arriving yesterday. The men were keenly disappointed at not being able to see service with their companions.

'Dundreary Weepers' New German Style

PARIS, Nov. 19.—"Dundreary weepers" are the proper face ornaments for soldiers, according to a recommendation made to a barbers' conference just held in Berlin. The barbers decided that the ideal whiskers resembled the Austrian Kaiser's, combined with the upturned mustache of the German Emperor.

MRS. MARY V. MAGRATH NOLAN of Charlestown, who will be married to James A. Hatton, Assistant United States District Attorney, tonight.

James A. Hatton, assistant United States district Attorney for this federal district, and Mrs. Mary V. Magrath Nolan of No. 41 Auburn street, in the Bunker Hill section of Charlestown, will be married this evening at St. Francis de Sales Church by Rev. Father Clark, who is a personal friend of Mr. Hatton.

The marriage is of social interest, not only in Charlestown, but also in other parts of the city where Mr. Hatton and Mrs. Nolan have many friends.

Mr. Hatton has been prominent in Charlestown politics. He served in the old Boston Common Council in 1907-8. The next two years he represented Charlestown in the House. During 1911-12 he was in the State Senate.

Last December he was appointed an assistant to the federal prosecutor here and has had charge of several government cases.

Following the ceremony this evening there will be a reception at the home of the bride.

EMDEN SPARES SHIP FOR SAKE OF A WOMAN

Praise of the gallantry of Captain von Mueller of the Emden comes in a letter to Mrs. Walter A. Hauck of No. 89 Bay State avenue, West Somerville, from her cousin, Mrs. Thomas Robinson, wife of the captain of the British freighter Kabinga, captured by the German cruiser in the Bay of Bengal and freed because von Mueller's ethics of gallantry would not permit him to give the order to sink the craft.

"When our crew was mustered, I was discovered, so the German officer signalled across to the Emden that a lady was on board, the captain's wife, and the commander replied we might remain on board until daylight, which out here is not until 6 a. m.

"In another hour or two along came the steamer Kilien, which was likewise stopped and captured. When daylight came we were told to remain where we were and to receive the crew of the Kilien, as she would be sunk immediately. Monday came and another fine ship, the Diplomat, was captured and her crew was transferred to us, as the sea was too rough for a lady to be put into a boat for the German commander was graciously pleased to admit).

"The Diplomat was fired at and sunk. She went down like the Titanic, her stern up in the air—although a terrible sight, it was a glorious one. Then the two crews that were on the Markomania were transferred to us, and meanwhile off went the Emden and captured an Italian vessel, but, as she was a neutral, of course, she was allowed to go to Calcutta. Just when it was getting dark, another steamer, the Trabbock, was sighted, and off went the Emden after her and brought her up to us. Her crew was likewise transferred to us and she was sunk.

"We then, with 415 people on board, were given a passport and commanded to return to Calcutta, which we did thankfully."

CHORUS GIRL IS BRIDE OF MILLIONAIRE

NEW YORK, Nov. 19.—James G. Speare, Jr., a millionaire stove manufacturer of Philadelphia, and Helen Louise Mercer, who, up to two weeks ago was one of the handsomest of the beauties in the "Follies of 1914," were quietly married in this city yesterday.

Mr. Speare has an annual income of $668,526.91 from his father's estate. He is a member of the Racquet, Markham, University, Rose Tree and Philadelphia Country Clubs and was graduated from Princeton in 1902.

"Cupid did not shoot his dart over the footlights into the heart of Mr. Speare. I know it spoils a good romance to say this, but my daughter met her husband at a place other than the theatre," said the chorus-bride's mother.

"Mr. Speare never went to the theatre. He met her mostly at our home," she said. "It was a quiet affair, and I don't think they wish to have their whereabouts known," Mrs. Mercer added.

Now that the news of the marriage has become public Mrs. Speare's former associates in the "Follies" chorus know what caused her to resign a fortnight ago, with the remark, "I am going to get married to a true blue millionaire."

STEEL RUSHED TO FORE RIVER FOR BIG ORDER

Active preparations are being made for a rush of work at the Fore River shipbuilding yard at Quincy, although nothing has been heard from the legal advisers to the State Department relative to the right, under the neutrality laws, of the company to build submarine boats in sections and then ship them as merchandise to any of the warring nations of Europe.

Many cars have arrived here from Bethlehem, Pa., with steel plates and more are expected. The company has filed plans for a $60,000 storehouse of concrete.

If the company is able to secure the right to build the ships it is said to have secured from one of the European nations now at war many men will undoubtedly be put to work.

$1,000 Lynn Fire Forces Many to Flee to Safety

Several persons were driven to the street when the Daisy Cottage, a four-tenement house, a part of the Hutchinson estate at High Rock, Lynn, was damaged by fire to the extent of $1,000.

The tenants were Mrs Frank Moses, Miss Grace Moses, one-year-old William Moses and the families of Arthur Anderson, Walter Kyle and Frank Lee.

The Lee and Moses families had much difficulty in reaching the street as they were forced to make their escape from the second floor.

Runaway Horse Returns to Driver

While George Miller of East Boston, who drives a delivery wagon for the Manufacturers' Steam Laundry, was calling on a customer at Washington and Courts streets this morning his horse wandered away. His brother, William, saw the rig minus the driver and rushed into the Court square police station to inquire what had happened to George. The police didn't know.

As William left the station he met his brother in Haymarket square. While they were talking the horse came along and rubbed his nose against George.

GIRL WAITS AT CHURCH FOR DEAD GROOM

MANCHESTER, N. H., Nov. 19.—Miss Amelia Schultz, formerly of Palmer, Mass., is prostrated here today following the finding of the body of her fiance, Timothy F. Cronin, in a gully near here while she was waiting at St. Joseph's Cathedral with her bridal party to marry him.

For several hours she waited, and when the groom failed to appear the party dispersed. The body was identified by a brother. Cronin had been frozen to death, in the opinion of the medical examiner.

Cronin was confidential clerk in Colonel John A. Sheehan's insurance agency.

Mrs. Lake Sues for Divorce; May Name a Society Woman

NEW YORK, Nov. 19. — Henry Steers Lake, member of the Jekyl Island, New York Athletic and Lotos clubs, whose romantic marriage in 1898 to Miss Marie Ziegler of Paris, was the talk of two continents, has been sued for divorce.

Mr. Lake's answer is a denial of all his wife's charges. Mrs Lake bases her action on an alleged visit by her husband to a hotel in Peekskill with a woman. The attorneys let it be assumed the woman's identity is a mystery. Rumor has it she is wealthy and well known in society.

Mme. Lina Cavalieri, the most famous living beauty, gives some advice which will be welcomed by every woman who wants to look her best.

IN NEXT SUNDAY'S BOSTON SUNDAY AMERICAN.

MRS. HENRY SIEGEL, wife of merchant prince now on trial for grand larceny, whose divorce petition has been sent to a referee.

NEW YORK, Nov. 19.—While Henry Siegel is on trial at Genesco, New York, the Supreme Court in this city has appointed a referee to hear testimony in the divorce action brought against him by his wife, Mrs. Marie Vaughan Siegel. Judge Guy notified Laurice Delchen, an attorney, to begin hearing testimony in the divorce case. Some months ago Mrs. Siegel came out with a startling expose of her husband's methods of doing business and announced that she had ample grounds for absolute divorce.

Americans Never Will Take Time to Rest Enough

"I am just feeling run down. No, it's not enough to see a doctor about. I just need a rest, that's all. I would take one, but I'm too busy just now.

Such words as these are spoken hundreds of times every day. Competition is so great that everyone has to keep their nose close to the grindstone in order to stay well to the front in the rush for existence.

These people fail to understand that every time their mind and body crave a rest, and it is denied them, they are bringing on Nervous Debility.

But since these people refuse to take time for rest, this vacation has had to be brought to them. Tona Vita, which may be obtained at all leading druggists in Boston, contains all the health-giving properties of rest and nature. It has worked wonders for people who have constantly felt tired and, depressed, who would be unable to get proper benefits out of a night's rest, who lacked of vitality and ambition to work with a smile on their faces and joy in their hearts.

SIEGEL WILL TESTIFY IN HIS OWN DEFENCE

GENESCO, N. Y., Nov. 19.—Just after the grand larceny trial of Henry Siegel was resumed today John B. Stanchfield, chief of counsel for the defence, announced that the defendant would take the stand in his own behalf. In addition Mr. Stanchfield said that many character witnesses, some of them of national prominence, would be called.

The defence will likely open on Monday. It is expected that the State will rest its case tomorrow night and there will be no session of the trial on the following day, Saturday, in deference to William Clark, who is presiding, has some motions to hear in another county.

Arthur Train, Assistant District Attorney of New York County, who is prosecuting Siegel, said that James F. Alexander, president of the National Bank of Commerce of New York, would be called by the State. Mr. Stanchfield said that he believed that the evidence of John Flint, the expert accountant, had really helped the defence.

"It proved that many important items were purposely omitted from the charts prepared by the prosecution to show the financial condition of the Fourteenth Street Store," said Mr. Stanchfield.

Flint was called for re-direct examination when court re-opened. Flint had testified on direct examination that the assets of the Fourteenth Street Store, the Simpson-Crawford Company and the Henry Siegel Company of Boston had been overestimated by $1,117,621; that the liabilities had been understated by $2,233,950, and that undisclosed liabilities totalled $3,263,049.

PRINCETON AND WELLESLEY IN JOINT CONCERT

There is a coming event for Wellesley College that isn't casting any shadows before—not a shadow. It is casting joy away in advance. The event is bulletined simply, thus:

"At the Waldorf-Astoria, New York City, Saturday evening, November 28, joint concert by Wellesley-Princeton Glee Clubs for the Building Fund."

Nothing terrific about that, apparently.

But notice the combination—"Wellesley-Princeton Glee Clubs." There goes another Wellesley College regulation.

For the first time in the college history the Glee Club girls are to sing in the same concert with men. Also it will be the first time the girls have been allowed to give a concert away from the college campus.

There was a lot of thinking by the college authorities before they gave permission. That "Building Fund" was powerful argument, and the combination of the Princeton basses and tenors and the Wellesley soprano and altos will be a great drawing card.

ALL FOR THE CAUSE.

The Glee Club girls are "crazy" about it, to use a favorite girlish mode of speech. They mean, of course, that they are "crazy" to help the building fund. If it is necessary to sing with a lot of good looking Princeton boys, why the girls will bear in mind that it's all for the good of the cause.

There is to be a dance after the concert. If the Princetonians urge the Wellesley singing maids to dance, the girls will not object—it's all for the building fund.

What sacrifices these college girls will make for the good of their Alma Mater is illustrated by the single-hearted enthusiasm with which the Glee Clubbers are looking forward to that concert "with Princeton."

The officers of the club are being congratulated by the girls for getting permission for this public appearance "with Princeton." Miss Georgia Titcomb, 1916, of Nogales, Ariz., is president; Miss Mary V. Chambers, 1915, of Moorestown, N. J., is leader; Miss Margaret D. Griffin, 1915, of Malden, is accompanist. Miss Titcomb, the president, is managing the concert plan, under the auspices of the New York Wellesley Club.

HERE ARE THE "MARTYRS."

There are thirty-seven voices in the Wellesley Glee Club, as follows:

First sopranos—Mary W. Chambers '15, Katherine C. Dodd '15, Jane Davidson '15, Irene Hogan '16, Laura Jennings '16, Helen Greenhagh '16, Alice de Lisle '16, Mary S. McLouth '15, Lois Mitchell '15, Marjorie Seeley '16, Georgia Titcomb '15, Elizabeth Hill '17.

Second sopranos—Helen Becker '15, Marion Breasington '15, Florence Clarke '15, Gladys Hartwell '15, Marion Locke '15, Elsie Morton '15, Louise Stowell '15, Marguerite Whitcomb '15, Caroline Miller '15, Melba Stroeh '17, Heniee Burnett '17.

First altos—Barbara Aldrich '15, Lucile Grant '16, M. McKenzie '16, Marie McMaster '15, Elizabeth Rafferty '16, Elizabeth Porter '15, Rachel Davis '15, Lois Ward '16.

Second altos—Elizabeth Mason '16, Evelyn McCarrol '15, Elma Joffmon '15, Dorothy Conable '16, Marguerite Jones '15, Florence Turnbuck '16.

MISS GEORGIA TITCOMB, president of the Wellesley Glee Club, which is to join with Princeton Club in concert for the building fund.

Porch Climbers Busy at Newton

Three breaks within three nights are puzzling the Newton police. On Monday night the home of Hovsan Xavier, No. 285 Bellevue street, Newton, was entered and jewelry and other articles valued at $200 were taken. On Tuesday night the residence of William E. Litchfield of No. 79 Bellevue street was also broken into, but the thieves were scared away before they got their loot. Last night the home of Herbert E. Fales of No. 19 Highland street, West Newton, was entered and over $200 worth of valuables were taken. The three breaks occurred as the families were at dinner. All entrances were made by climbing porches and forcing the second story windows.

Russian Ship to Help Lift Freight Blockade

The Russian steamer Alcof is on her way from the River Tyne, England, to this port to help move the large amount of accumulated freight at the various railroad terminals here. At present, owing to the withdrawal of so many foreign ships for transport service, there is great difficulty in getting ships to carry the freight offered. The Boston & Albany railroad sent seventy-five carloads of Boston freight to New York this week on account of the lack of cargo space in vessels sailing from Boston.

Arabic Dodges Danger of Mines

The White Star liner Arabic, which sailed from Liverpool for Boston on Wednesday, omitted her call at Queenstown on account of the danger of mines on the Irish coast. The ship is bringing 179 cabin and 182 steerage passengers.

Record Cargo on the Fruiter Limon

The United Fruit steamer Limon sailed for Havana today with the biggest cargo that has been taken out since the line established its Havana service. The bumper cargo included 1,000 sacks and 1,200 barrels of potatoes, 500 bags of onions, 200 barrels of salt fish, 1,200 barrels of apples, two carloads of print paper, vast quantities of shoes, hay, lumber, machinery and miscellaneous cargo.

The management of "The Passing Show of 1914," at the Shubert Theatre, has tendered a professional matinee to Sam Bernard, now appearing in "The Belle of Bond Street," at the Majestic, to take place Friday afternoon. Mr. Bernard has invited as his guests all the stars and players now appearing in the Boston theatres, and they have all responded.

In addition to the regular performance of "The Passing Show," a special free bill will be the singing by Mollie King, the little prima donna of Mr. Bernard's company, during one of the intermissions, of the patriotic national trade mark song, "Made in the U. S. A.," written by Robert Goodhue.

During the singing the young women of Mr. Bernard's company will pass among the audience selling copies of the song, the entire proceeds of the sale being devoted to the Actors' Fund of America, which is greatly in need of the money.

Mr. Goodman has donated the songs and Miss King, Mr. Horner, the comedian and the girls of "The Belle of Bond Street" their services.

Newsmen Rehearse Musical Comedy as Their Ninth Show

Fifty members of the Mutual Relief and Benefit Association of the Hotel and Railroad News Company are rehearsing for their ninth annual show, which will be presented December 14, 15 and 16, at Jordan Hall. This year's production, "The Duke of Connaught," is a musical comedy in three acts. Included in the cast are Harold E. Stewart, a star in New England Conservatory and Harvard Club circles; Nellie Ferguson, Marion Thompson, Catherine Haney, Beatrice Ashmore, "the tambourine girl"; William Doonan and Larry McAfee, old Roxbury favorites, and Joe Hogan, John Kelly, Harry Walker, John J. Sullivan and T. R. Sherer. Charles H. Sargent has charge of the arrangements.

Boston to Reopen With 'The Spoilers'

Robert J. Jannette, formerly of the Globe Theatre, and during the past year manager of the Metropolitan Opera House in Philadelphia, has assumed the management of the Boston Theatre. Mr. Jannette has secured for his opening attraction what is considered the greatest photo play that has yet been produced, based on the famous novel, "The Spoilers," by Rex Beach. More money was expended in this production than in any other photo play ever made. Owing to the immense cost, it could only be presented at reasonable prices in a theatre of large seating capacity, like the Boston Theatre. The Boston Theatre will open with this new policy next Monday. One of the features will be a large symphony orchestra.

ARREST THREE FOR HOLDUP AND ROBBERY

Three men were rounded up early today by the police in connection with a holdup and robbery in which George Cruce, a man of sixty, who lives in Williamstown, was the victim, and the police believe they have broken up a gang of drug-users.

Patrolman Verkampen, passing along Haverhill street early today, heard cries for help from the underground foot passage that runs from Canal to Haverhill street, and dashed down there. Three men sprinted for safety, but he grabbed one of them, and in the passage found Cruce, who reported a knife and $12 had been stolen from him.

He told the police he was one of a gang, they say; and that the members of the gang were drug-fiends and were robbing drunken men and other helpless folk to get money for their "dope." As a result of his story, Sergeant McTiernan and Patrolman Verkampen went into the West End and arrested Charles T. Putnam, who gave his age as eighteen and his home at No. 641 Cross street. Cruce identified him as one of the robbers. Then the officers went to a Bowdoin street lodging house and arrested John Peperus, nineteen, and John Rose, twenty-three. Cruce identified Peperus; and the police held Rose on a vagrant, and charge he is the leader of the gang.

Radiograph Saves Hundreds of Lives

PARIS, Nov. 19.—A service of radioscopic-radiographic automobile ambulances has been organized and filled up by Mme. Curie and has added to France's medical war equipment. The automobiles are run between the base hospitals and engaged in locating bullets lodged in wounded soldiers.

By means of these examinations the saving of hundreds of lives or expediting and facilitating the extraction of missiles is accomplished. The most remarkable feature of the work of Mme. Curie's automobile radiographic apparatus is that the location of wounds in the brain and the speedy evening operation frequently saves the soldiers from paralysis.

Says Germans Tore Down the U. S. Flag

LONDON, Nov. 19.—A Belgian arriving in London says that on Sunday a steamer flying the Stars and Stripes arrived with food, and on the distribution of food began German soldiers tore down the American flag from the office of the Red Star line, where some American goods were stored. They tore the flag in half and destroyed it.

The American consul came and demanded the flag. They could not find it. Then the consul demanded that they buy a new one. When it was brought he hoisted it and forced down the German flag, treating it in the same way his own flag had been treated.

MRS. JULIA R. ALDRICH, Republican School Committee nominee in Somerville.

Mrs. Aldrich Wins Nomination on the Vote of 200 Women

Two hundred women voters in Somerville swung the Republican school committee nomination to Mrs. Julia R. Aldrich of No. 262 School street, Somerville.

At the primaries her vote was 340, against 96 for Edwin L. Pride and 56 for A. A. Wyman. But the 200 women voted solidly for her, with the result that she won where the votes swung to either of the other candidates would have beaten her.

Mrs. Aldrich is the widow of the late Dr. Albert C. Aldrich, and her victory is likewise a victory for the Somerville School Association which boosted her candidacy.

Mrs. Aldrich is a prominent club woman. She is a former president of the Neptorean Club and of the Woman's Auxiliary to the Somerville Boys' Club. She is a member of the Somerville Visiting Nurses' Association and president of the Woman's Union of the Winter Hill Congregational Church. She was herself a school teacher before she married Dr. Aldrich.

FIND BODY OF LOST EVERETT GIRL IN POOL

bottom of the pit slopes toward that point and he bodies gradually work down that way and come to a rest there.

GRAPPLES CATCH.

When the policemen began to grapple there was a gathering fringe of spectators on the pit bank. Among the arrivals was an agitated man, who watched the two policemen with painful anxiety. This was Byron Parker, the girls' father. He went to work this morning at the rubber factory where he is one of the foremen. After trying to work for an hour he could stand the strain no longer, quit his job and hurried to the pit. He knew that grappling was to be done.

The father arrived there just after the policemen began grappling. His daughter's body was found inside of three minutes from the time he came. Patrolman Crocker, who was working the grapples, felt the irons catch on something. Not knowing that the agonized father was within hearing, the patrolman cried out across: "I have found [illegible] His guess was correct.

The body was raised to the surface and was held to the side of the rowboat until the medical examiner arrived soon after. Then it was rowed to shore and taken to the undertaker's.

There was a report that the hat and shoes were missing, also that the dress or outer skirt was gone. The clothing was all there, except the girl's hat, but some of the garments were disarranged and slightly torn, as stated.

MAYOR NOTIFIED.

Over 200 people watched the bringing of the body to shore. Many followed to the undertaking rooms. Dr. McCaffery, the girl's father and the police were admitted to the undertaking rooms.

Somebody telephoned Mayor James Chambers, who had been personally interested in the search for the girl and somebody also had the sad duty of notifying the girl's step-mother. Mrs. Parker was overcome with grief at the confirmation of her worst fears.

Women of the Chatham road neighborhood came over to the Parker home and tried to minister to the heart-broken step-mother and to comfort the brothers and sisters.

The pool in the old Coleman trap-rock quarry is about 100 feet each way and from six o twelve feet deep. The banks pitch down toward the water abruptly nearly all the way around.

The quarry has not been used for several years. The last body found there, before that of Hildred Parker, was of an Italian, who had been missing six months. When that body was found the city ordered the pit to be filled. Since then a few cart loads of refuse have been dumped there.

NEAR PARKER HOME.

The pool is less than a quarter of a mile from the Parker home and only a few minutes walk from the corner of Union street and Chatham road, where Mildred was last seen alive. Union street runs about 100 feet distant from one side of the pool and Chelsea street less than half that distance on the other side.

Spectators wondered why the body should be found so much nearer the Chelsea street side when Mildred was last seen on Union street, but Patrolman Crocker's experience has shown that bodies usually are found in that spot.

Two More German Generals Dead

BERLIN, via Amsterdam, Nov. 19.—Two more German generals have lost their lives, according to an official list of casualties issued here today. They are General von Brissen, commander of an infantry division, and General von Winterfeldt, Governor of Metz.

General von Brissen was killed in the fight in Poland on November 6, while General von Winterfeldt, Governor of Metz, died at Wiesbaden on Tuesday after a short illness brought on by exposure suffered in the campaign along the Meuse.

Shells from British Ships Kill 1,700

PARIS, Nov. 19.—In connection with the renewal of warship activity off the Belgian coast, where the French and British men-of-war are bombarding the Germans, the following story comes from Dunkirk:

The Germans noticed that the fire from English ships spared houses on the seafront at Middelkerke and took up quarters there. This fact became known to the British, who concentrated the fire of five warships upon the buildings, demolishing them. The German loss is estimated at 1,700.

Correct Way to Treat Skin Diseases

Both air and water seem to have a bad effect upon skin diseases like Eczema, of which there are many forms. Keeping out the water and air is the first thing to do. By using Cadum, the well-known remedy for skin diseases, air and water are excluded, because Cadum contains petrolatum and white wax, and these form a tight covering over the sore places upon the skin. Cadum also contains oil of cade, which has been successfully used many years by the medical profession in the treatment of Eczema and other skin troubles. If your skin is inflamed, irritated or sore, get a 10c box of Cadum of your druggist and try it. The 25c size box contains nearly four times as much as the 10c size and is cheaper to buy.

VILLA ARRESTS GUTIERREZ AND HIS FOLLOWERS

CHAPULTAO, Nov. 19.—Guanajuato, capital of the State of the same name, has been captured by General Benavides, commander of the Zaragoza brigade, and the march of General Villa's army on Mexico City continues. The Carranzista troops are retiring everywhere.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 19.—The die is cast for war between the Villa and Carranza factions in Mexico, administration officials fear today.

Dispatches received from constitutionalist agents at El Paso report the imprisonment by Villa of the entire convention at Aguas Calientes together with Provisional President Gutierrez.

American Consul Silliman, now at ports to free [illegible] soon will have a short story saying that affairs there are more serious than at any time since the beginning of the peace parleys.

Carranza says Silliman has been misunderstood as to his offers of retirement. He intends to hang on to until he can place the executive power in the hands of a man of his choice, preferably General Pablo Gonzales. Meanwhile Villa is vigorously pressing toward Queretaro, where the Carranzistas are concentrating and where the first big armed clash will occur.

MEXICO CITY, Nov. 19.—General Carranza has established his government at Orizaba, it was officially announced here today. Most of the government officials left for that city on special trains during the night. Among the few remaining officials here is Major Gaston de Prida, who has been placed in charge of the consul's office.

A new commission, headed by Ignacio Fernandez Calderon, left for the north at midnight. Calderon will make a final effort to effect peace without resort to arms, but it is believed his mission will result in failure.

SAGE AND SULPHUR DARKENS GRAY HAIR

It's Grandmother's Recipe to Restore Color, Gloss and Thickness.

Hair that loses its color and lustre, or when it fades, turns gray, dull and lifeless, is caused by a lack of sulphur in the hair. Our grandmother made up a mixture of Sage Tea and Sulphur to keep her locks dark and beautiful, and thousands of women and men who value that even color, that beautiful dark shade of hair which is so attractive, use only this old-time recipe.

Nowadays we get this famous mixture by asking for "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," which darkens the hair so naturally and evenly, that nobody can possibly tell it has been applied. Besides, it takes off dandruff, stops scalp itching and falling hair. You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears; but what delight the ladies with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur is that, besides beautifully darkening the hair after a few applications, it also brings back the gloss and lustre and gives it an appearance of abundance.

PAY LAST HONOR TO ROBERTS

LONDON, Nov. 19.—Babes was buried today while the whole English nation mourned. The funeral services for the late Lord Roberts in St. Paul's Cathedral overshadowed even the war news and hundreds of thousands of persons stood silent and reverent in a cold drizzle of rain while the cortege passed through the streets. Royal tribute was paid to the memory of Britain's best beloved soldier, or the "Master gunner," as Kipling called him.

King George attended the funeral together with high officers of the army and navy, members of the government, diplomats of foreign countries and scores of other notables.

As the cortege reached the cathedral, nineteen guns planted in St. James Park thundered a requiem salute and in the wet, foggy air the dull roar echoed and re-echoed.

Before daybreak men and women began gathering along the streets through which the body of Lord Roberts was borne from Charing Cross station to St. Paul's Cathedral. The route lay along Thames embankment, which was dense with people.

UNCOVER IN RAIN.

Out of the dense bank of fog, which rolled upward from the river, a steady, cold rain fell, but despite the rain and the cold not one uncovered their heads while the gun carriage upon which the coffin was strapped rumbled through the streets.

The impressiveness of the scene brought tears to the eyes of women and men alike. The scene was unprecedented. Through the civilian ranks, to each of whom Lord Roberts had endeared himself by his devotion to his country, ran a thrill of sympathy and pride as the guard of honor, especially picked for the occasion, rolled by with the dead. The coffin was wrapped in a United Jack.

Before the gun carriage Lord Roberts favorite horse was led. Six generals of the British army carried Lord Roberts' baton, the insignia of his office as a British field marshal. Behind the horse, which walked with muffled drums, played a funeral march, the details of which were all clothed above the tramp of marching feet and the clatter of hoofbeats.

In carriages which made up the rear of the impressive procession came field marshals of the army, commanding generals, admirals of the navy and other high officers. Among them could be seen the smooth shaved, boyish face of First Lord of the Admiralty Winston Spencer Churchill and the grim, massive figure of Earl Kitchener, Secretary of State for War, clad in khaki.

SALUTE GUN CARRIAGE.

The route was lined with soldiers who presented arms as the gun carriage with its distinguished burden passed by.

Lady Roberts, attired in the deepest of mourning and accompanied by her daughter, reached the cathedral by another route than that taken by the cortege. Upon the arrival of the funeral procession at St. Paul's, the casket, still draped with the scarlet standard of England, was borne to the altar. There it reposed during the ceremonies, with Lord Roberts' sword and baton resting upon it.

In the funeral oration, which was brief and couched in simple language, though symbolic of the nature of the man it praised, Lord Roberts was held up as a model soldier. Pious, straightforward, and obedient to his trust, he allowed nothing to deter him from his duty to his God and his country. He was a soldier of the cross as well as a soldier of his king.

Among those in the cathedral in addition to those already named were Admiral Right Hon. Sir Edward Hobart Seymour, Field Marshal Sir Evelyn Wood, Field Marshal Lord Grenfell, Field Marshal Lord Methuen, Field Marshal Lord Nicholson, Lieutenant-General Sir Archibald Hunter, General Sir Alfred Gaselee, General Sir Charles Comyn-Bgerton, Admiral Lord Charles Beresford, Foreign Minister Sir Edward Grey, David Lloyd-George, Chancellor of Exchequer, Prince Arthur of Connaught and W. H. Page, the American Ambassador.

The afternoon of the military honors paid to the late soldier filled to overflowing the human side. It was touching to watch the tributes spot shown by Belgian and French soldiers who mingled with the drums, played a funeral march, the details of which were all clothed above the tramp of marching feet and the clatter of hoofbeats.

The afternoon of the military honors paid to the late soldier filled to overflowing the human side. It was touching to watch the tributes spot shown by Belgian and French soldiers who mingled with the crowds at the station and near the cathedral. They wept with the English and showed the measure of sorrow that one would expect if a famous soldier of their own nationality had died. The service at the cathedral began at noon, and just before the opening anthem sounded a wreath, presented by Dowager Queen Alexandra, was placed upon the catafalque.

The body of Lord Roberts will lie near the graves of Lord Nelson and Lord Wolseley, two famous British fighters of the past, who faced enemies of the British kingdom on land and sea.

The gun carriage upon which Lord Roberts' remains were carried was that which Lord Roberts' son was endeavoring to save when he was killed at Colenso.

Shortly before his departure to France on his fatal journey Lord Roberts wrote a striking article on the war, which will be printed in full in next Sunday's AMERICAN. In this article Lord Roberts raises the question of what might be expected to happen to the United States in case Germany wins and secures control of the Atlantic.

Kipling's Eulogy on 'Bobs'

LONDON, Nov. 19.—Rudyard Kipling's new eulogy on Lord Roberts is printed in today's Daily Telegraph, as follows:

He passed in the very battle smoke
Of the war that he descried,
Three hundred mile of cannon spoke
When the Master Gunner died.

He passed to the very sound of guns,
But before his eye grew dim
He had seen the faces of the sons
Whose sires had served with him.

He had touched their sword hilts and greeted each
With the old sureword of praise,
And there was virtue in touch and speech
As it was in the olden days.

So he dismissed them and took his rest
And the steadfast spirit went forth,
Between the adoring East and West
And the tireless guns in the North.

Clean, simple, valiant, well beloved,
Flawless in faith and fame,
Whom neither ease nor honors moved
A hair's breadth from his aim.

Never again the war-wise face,
The weighed and urgent word
That pleaded in the market place,
Pleaded, and was not heard.

Yet from life a new life springs
Through all the hosts to come;
And glory is the least of things
That follow this man home.

Newman Endorses Give-a-Basket Plan

Max Henry Newman endorses the "Give-a-Basket" plan. He commends an editorial on this plan in the AMERICAN, as follows:

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:

"Charity begins at Home" is a good editorial, as must be help those who are dear and near to us. We have a vast field and that is in more spots. Money is sent to European countries to help the poor. In this crisis of a European war we, too, have our troubles that need to be cared for. Is Europe concerned about our difficulties? Oh, no. We are always an easy lemon to be squeezed when the call comes. American money is needed right here. We must rehabilitate. Bring our business to a state of prosperity, and then after we have tended to our affairs, looked after our wants and needs, with what we have to spare we can give, but not until after we have first done by our own the duty we owe.

Deny Battenberg Treason Rumor

LONDON, Nov. 19.—Reports circulated in the United States and cabled here today to the effect that a Battenberg prince had committed suicide after being caught in the betrayal of taxation of English ships to Germany, brought forth the following statement from the British press bureau today: "Prince Henry of Battenberg has been dead many years. If the message refers to Prince Louis of Battenberg, it is obviously maliciously untrue." Prince Louis recently resigned the position of first lord of the admiralty.

MOTOR NOTES

By J. C. KERRISON.

As an emergency occasioned by the European war, the government of Newfoundland has increased the rates of duty on a number of articles, including all motor vehicles and rubber tires. This makes the duty on automobiles $2 per cent, an increase of 15 per cent over the old rate. The duty on rubber tires is raised from 40 to 45 per cent.

Burt Dingley, the well-known racing driver, who was severely injured in the Tacoma races on July 4, is on the road to recovery and has been permitted to get into the open air in a wheeled chair.

Representatives of the leading accessory houses of Boston attended and the meeting was addressed by several speakers prominent in the automobile accessory industry. Much enthusiasm was aroused and a general committee was appointed on organization.

The next meeting of the association will be held on Monday evening, December 14, in the Diamond Building, on Boylston street.

Baumgardt Begins His Travel Lectures

B. E. Baumgardt opened his series of travel lectures at Tremont Temple last evening before a large and enthusiastic audience. His subject for the evening was "The Romantic Rhine" and "Vienna." The lecture was also illustrated by a beautifully hand colored motion picture of the Rhine from Cologne to Bingen, showing the falls. The poetic description by Mr. Baumgardt of the beauties of the historic German river added much to the evening's entertainment. The lecture will be repeated Saturday afternoon at 2:30.

Hodge Startled as "Hen" Began to Crow

How one of the "Road to Happiness" hens came to be a rooster was made known today. The show carries two hens that play an important part in the harvard scene in the third act. The stage hand that has charge of the birds took them to a hen feed store yesterday morning for a supply of chicken-a-doodle-doo. When the certain was rung down Hodge started an investigation and found the stage hand had grabbed a pet rooster in the stable in mistake for one of the "Road to Happiness" hens.

FOR DANDRUFF, FALLING HAIR OR ITCHY SCALP---25 CENT DANDERINE

If you care for heavy hair, that glistens with beauty and is radiant with life; has an incomparable softness and is fluffy and lustrous, try Danderine.

Just one application doubles the beauty of your hair, besides it immediately dissolves every particle of dandruff; you can not have nice, heavy, healthy hair if you have dandruff. This destructive scurf robs the hair of its lustre, its strength and its very life, and if not overcome it produces a feverishness and itching of the scalp, the hair roots famish, loosen and die; then the hair falls out fast.

If your hair has been neglected and is thin, faded, dry, scraggy or too oily, get a 25-cent bottle of Knowlton's Danderine at any drug store or toilet counter; apply a little as directed and ten minutes after you will say this was the best investment you ever made.

We sincerely believe, regardless of everything else advertised, that if you desire soft, lustrous, beautiful hair and lots of it—no dandruff—no itching scalp and no more falling hair—you must use Knowlton's Danderine. If eventually—why not now? —ADVERTISEMENT.

TWO MORE OF THE KAISER'S GENERALS KILLED

GERMAN SUCCESSES ADMITTED BY RUSSIA

the boat was turned back because it attempted to enter without previous arrangements having been made with the Turkish authorities.

Secretary Daniels, with the approval of President Wilson, simultaneously cabled the commanders of the Tennessee and the North Carolina, also in the Mediterranean, to take no action which might embarrass the American government and to await specific instructions from Washington concerning the general situation.

The London Daily News editorially referring to the Smyrna incident, says today:

"The proceedings of the Turkish authorities appear of quite inexplicable imbecility. Presumably German influence will be brought to bear promptly to compel Turkey to apologize for the outrageous behavior. The incident is certain to attract a great deal more attention in a country extraordinarily jealous of its citizens' rights like the United States."

SUCCESSES FOR THE ALLIES IN WEST FLANDERS REPORTED

Successes for the arms of the allies in Belgium and along the line are reported in today's cable dispatches.

A correspondent, telegraphing from a point in Northern France, says that a detachment of British soldiers and French marines have captured Schoore, a town in West Flanders, driving out the German defenders with severe loss. Part of the British troops advanced along the only roadway by which the town could be approached, while the marines and other British soldiers crossed the inundated district on rafts and flat-bottomed boats, delivering a surprise attack upon the Germans' rear.

The Germans, being thus surprised while holding back the attacking force on the highway with machine guns, turned and fled, the dispatch says, leaving guns, ammunition and other war stores behind.

Defeat of the Germans in their operations against the allies in the vicinity of Tracy-le-Val, on the north bank of the Aisne, is announced in an official French statement issued at Paris this afternoon. It states that Wednesday was marked by a renewal of activity on the part of the German artillery forces on the Belgium front, but that here was no attack by the infantry. The French positions in the Argonne forest, it states, have been maintained.

The Algerian troops in particular are commended by the French War Office for the part taken in the repulse of the enemy at Tracy-le-Val. This is the first official announcement that has been issued stationg that the Turcos were on the battlefront along the Aisne. As they have been sent to points where fighting was fiercest, it is believed by French military experts that there has been a terrific conflict within the last few days on the north bank of the Aisne.

GERMAN COUP IN THE EAST.

Evidence is accumulating to support the view that the Kaiser, following up his recent success in Poland, is planning to deliver a crushing blow at Russia, his effort to smash his way to the English Channel coast having failed. The London Post's Petrograd correspondent sends the following outline of the German Emperor's plan in the Eastern war theatre:

"Emperor William is staking his all upon the great battle in Poland. He has brought his finest troops from France, borrowed the best cavalry, namely, the Hungarian horse, depleted his garrisons by moving their guns wherever possible, and now strikes for victory or death. Having based all his hopes on crushing France, he now is similarly turning on Russia, and this battle must decide the fate of Germany's whole adventure."

It is admitted in Petrograd that the German forces along the front from the Vistula to the Warthe have made marked advances, but it is explained that this was due to the numerical superiority of the Teuton troops rushed into Poland from Thorn, and the withdrawal of the Russian forces to ground more favorable for waging a great battle. The following explanation appears in the Army Messenger, the official Russian war publication:

"The lack of definite news indicates that the Russian armies are marching to take strategic positions for the great battle that is developing on the Polish territory. The advantage lies with the Russians, who will be able to select the ground on which to fight, the Germans being the attackers.

"The Russian advance guards have withdrawn up the Vistula a short distance. The Germans are also strengthening the other end of their line around Lowycea and Orloff. A great battle is imminent, as the Germans are throwing the most desperate energy into their efforts to frustrate the Russian operations in East Prussia."

Berlin officially admits the death of two more German generals, Von Brisson, killed in Poland on November 12, and Von Winterfeldt, Governor of Metz, who died at Wiesbaden Tuesday from exposure.

Defeat of a French attack on the western slope of the Argonne forest is announced in an official report of the German staff issued at Berlin.

TURKS MOVING ON BATOUM.

It is officially announced at Constantinople that the Turkish troops are nearing the Russian port of Batoum, and that the capture of that important town is imminent.

A dispatch from the Ottoman field headquarters says that the Turkish troops have occupied Kalatulnahl, sixty-two miles beyond the Egyptian frontier.

An official report from the Austrian general staff at Vienna announces the capture of 3,000 Russians in Galicia and states that the operations against the Servians are proceeding with great success.

GERMANS CLOSING DYKES THAT HALTED THEM IN COAST MARCH

By FREDERICK WERNER.
Staff Correspondent of the American.

BERLIN, via Amsterdam, Nov. 19.—Though temporarily halted in their campaign to gain the French coast by the floods caused by the cutting of dykes in the Yser Valley, the Germans are meeting this emergency as they have met others, with forces provided for just such an occasion.

Bodies of engineers numbering 7,000 men have been taken to the Dixmude front during the last week and are engaged in closing the gaps in the dykes and constructing pontoon bridges on which the infantry can cross the inundated country.

The soldiers swam their horses for a mile through icy water at night and took by surprise a body of English troops guarding a position near Dixmude. Though astonished by the sudden appearance of the German troopers, the British soldiers fought desperately to hold their position. They were finally driven out, however, and the Germans have "dug themselves in" at that point and are holding it against every attack.

While the floods are interfering with operations along the front from the coast to Ypres the German troops are strengthening their positions from Ypres to Arras and farther south. West of St. Quentin and Roye they have gained ground, it is announced here, by continually hammering away at the allies' line. This has been bent at several points, but no smashing attack on any one position has been made as piercing of the enemy's front in this region would have no important result while the French and British troops maintain their positions on the Ypres-Armentieres front.

Large guns just turned out and fully tested at the Krupp works have been transported to the neighborhood of Arras by way of Aix-la-Chappelle and Liege.

Belgium Relief Ship Near Malines

ROTTERDAM, Nov. 19.—The first consignment of food stuff from the cargo of the relief ship Tremorvah, to be sent into Belgium for the starving population, left here today for Malines. It consisted mainly of flour. A dispatch from Brussels states that Brand Whitlock, the United States Minister, has now been assured of a sufficient supply of food for the Belgians. Baron von der Goltz, the German Military Governor of Belgium, has given Mr. Whitlock guarantees that none of the food shipped into the country will be used for the German soldiers.

FRENCH.

PARIS, Nov. 19, 3:45 P. M.—[illegible] the north yesterday the [illegible] a repetition of activity on the part of the enemy's artillery, particularly between the Aisne and the Lys. There was no attack by infantry.

Between the Oise and the Aisne the operations around Tracy-le-Val have terminated very favorably for our troops. It must be remembered that we took that village a few days ago.

Day before yesterday the Germans attempted to recapture it after having taken our first trenches. They advanced as far as the centre of that locality, but a vigorous counter-attack by our Algerian contingent threw the enemy back, took from him all the ground that we had lost and inflicted heavy losses upon him.

In the Argonne we have maintained our position. On the rest of the front there is nothing to report.

AUSTRIAN.

VIENNA, Nov. 18.—The continued operations of the allied armies in Russian Poland and Galicia are developing conditions that are highly favorable to our troops. Near Grebow (in Galicia north of Dynastow) a strong Russian cavalry force was dispersed by our artillery and we captured 3,000 prisoners.

The Russian advance toward the Carpathians is of no great importance at present. Our troops occupy positions that are of great strength.

In Servia, our advance toward Belgrade continues. We have captured many guns and great quantities of supplies.

K. AND L. OF HONOR—Four matches at Littlefield's.
HIGHLAND—Four matches at the Dudley alleys, Roxbury.

FINAL arrangements were completed today for a bowling match between Paul Ewbank, champion of New Hampshire, and Harold Ingell, who holds a similar title in New York City.

The contest will take place on next Monday and Tuesday evenings and will consist of fifteen strings on each night, five at candles, five at duckpins, and five at ninepins. The opening fifteen strings will be rolled at the Carruth alleys on Hanover street, but just where the final fifteen will be held has not yet been decided. The match will be on the best three in five bouts at each style of pin.

This is the first big intercity match of this kind ever made and should prove a wonderful attraction.

RIDDELL is admittedly a better ten-pin bowler than Poehler, as the latter is the first to admit, but the Yale captain and the New Yorker has rolled the ball quite frequently and claims he will extend a surprise. He believes he will make a creditable showing against Poehler at the small pins, and hopes to offset Riddell's advantage by piling up a big lead with the big ones.

Poehler has never rolled against the bottles in a match game. He has been practicing during the last couple of weeks, however, by setting his great ball into play, has come wonderfully well for a newcomer, and will be no set-up against them before but no very low occasions.

BY taking four points from Boylston last night, Chauncy opened up a tidy little gap on the leaders in the City League and now leads its nearest opponent, Adams Square, by eight points. The games are closely bunched. Adams Square dislodged Boylston in the runner-up position by taking a pair from Columbus, and Murray came to deck with another over-the-century total, a string of five four points from Carruth.

The pinfalls were unusually light, Murray and Chauncy being the only ones to pass the 1,500 mark. The former hit the wood 1,513 pins, while Bill Beatty's aggregation turned in the best total of 1,539.

Jim Hartford of the Murray team was within one pin of Harry Howard's record when he whacked out a string of 134. Individual scores of the night were: Hartford, Murray, 134; Thornton, Carruth, 356; Cooley, Chauncy, 351; Holmes, Boylston, 325; Pochler, Chauncy, 313; Rouse, Carruth, 312; Sweatman, Murray, 311; Gillispie, Murray, 308; Beatty, Chauncy, 301; O'Brien, Boylston, 300; Peters, Adams Square, 299; Caine, 301; Grove, Casino, 306.

THE Inter-Yacht League, composed of the Columbia, Mosquito Fleet, Dorchester and South Boston clubs, is considering tonight's schedule of C. C. Cunningham, secretary. Manager of the organization has already planned out the opening schedule of fifteen weeks, which will conclude by March 29.

THE weekly roll-off at the Adams Square alleys, which was won by Currie with a three-string total of 356, proved the most interesting held so far this season. Besides Currie, six other bowlers went over the 300 mark, while the lowest prize winner landed in a card of 291. The scores follow: Crentz, 324; Martin, 312; Bowker, 308; Hennessey, 305; A. Hayes, 304; Mahoney, Hall, 294; Shults, 292; Coen, 289; Brown, 288. The tournament was arranged for a turkey roll-off on next Tuesday.

FREDDY WELSH THE BUSY BEE OF THE BOXERS

FREDDIE WELSH, the new holder of the world's championship, is setting a record for activity in titular ring bouts.

Within the last four weeks Welsh has engaged in three bouts and tonight he takes on Jimmy Duffy at Buffalo, making a total of four bouts in as many weeks, which establishes a record for any champion.

Up to date, Welsh has been successful in the defence of his title, and all his bouts were hard ones.

Starting with his match with Matty Baldwin, Welsh has taken on the cream of the lightweight talent in this country, and next Tuesday night when he faces Packey De Lacey he tackles just as stiff game and perhaps more so than any of the others he has faced to date.

* * *

THE Taunton lightweight has defeated a number of good lightweights and his recent achievements give him just as good a standing in the lightweight running as many others who are looking for a chance at the championship.

Yelle can hit, is as fast as lightning. He may not have all of the ideas of the finer points of the game, but he surely knows how to fight and is going to Buffalo fully ready for fighting ability to win him a championship.

Welsh cannot afford to take any liberties with the Taunton lightweight and he is training with a care that speaks well of Yelle's fighting.

* * *

JOE EAGAN, the Dorchester welterweight, has once again shown the white feather. He was matched to box Bill Fleming at the Derby Club in Lawrence tonight, but at the last minute quit out of the match. Eagan claims he is sick, but his manager says that he afraid to box the boy from Maine. Patsy Delucca has been substituted for Eagan and he should make a great fight with Fleming.

Fleming and DeLucca fought one of the best bouts staged in Manchester last season and he is confident that he can take Wild Bill in camp tonight. They will box twelve rounds and as Delucca is a very good cart wheeler Lawrence fans will should play to capacity.

TERRY BROOKS, the hard hitting lightweight of the West End, will take the place of Fred Yelle at Taunton tonight. Brooks defeated Jimmy Fasone of Connecticut. Yelle was originally carded to box Fasane, but he stepped out of the match because the Atlas A. A. of this city offered him better inducements to box Freddie Welsh, the lightweight champion of the world.

Brooks and Fasane fought at the Atlas Club the first part of the Summer and it was a great bout to watch from the spectators standpoint, and if they repeat tonight at Portland the members are in for a fine treat.

ABE ATTELL, the former featherweight champion, who has been training for three days in an effort to "comeback," will be unable to meet George Chaney, the Buffalo boy, at Toledo, O., on Thanksgiving Day. Attell dislocated his left thumb in a workout at Chicago Tuesday and immediately called off the bout by wire.

* * *

DAN FLYNN of this city, who hasn't boxed since he vanquished big Jim Johnson, the Texas giant, at the Arena a couple of months ago, has been matched to meet "Steve" Hawkins of Chicago at Montreal next Monday night.

Rub Omega Oil gently over the place that hurts. Then soak a piece of flannel with the Oil, lay it on the painful part and cover with a piece of dry flannel. This simple treatment usually gives quick relief. Trial bottle 10c.

Will report the greatest football game of the year from every conceivable angle for

THE BOSTON SUNDAY AMERICAN

These pictures will be brought to Boston by special messenger from the Boston AMERICAN'S special corps of photographers at New Haven.

CHASING THE PIGSKIN

"GIVE us some more of that old-time football stuff," writes a friend to the "Pigskin" department.

All right. Here goes. We will begin with a paragraph written and printed yesterday by our confrere, Bob Dunbar:

"Would you believe that a Harvard man ever acted as referee of a Harvard-Yale game? Fact. The referee of the match between the Crimson and the Blue at Springfield, in 1889, which Yale won, 6 to 0, was 'Allie' Porter, Harvard, '88. Hector Cowan of Princeton, the man agreed upon refused to serve, and Dr. Porter was selected the eleventh hour. He gave entire satisfaction."

YES, we remember the game very well. It was the first of the series between Harvard and Yale played at Hampden Park, Springfield—the series that came to an end in 1894, when the Harvard people thought Frank Hinkey, the present coach at Yale, was too much of a "tough house."

YALE might well thank the First Baptist Sunday School of Boston, for that 6 to 0 victory, of 1889.

How's that? Well, it's a long story, stranger, but boiled down to the fewest possible words the story is this:

IN his boyhood days "Allie" Porter attended the First Baptist Sunday School of Boston. He learned among other things that "Honesty is the best policy."

Later he attended Yale and became one of the best halfbacks that institution ever produced. In his day he was talked of as much as Charlie Brickley is today.

WHEN the regularly selected referee failed to show up at Springfield to officiate in the game of 1889 Captain Gill, of Yale, suggested that "Allie" Porter be selected for the job. This was agreeable to Captain Cumnock of Harvard, and "Allie" was prevailed upon to accept.

IN those days the referee had to serve three as well as keep score. There was no linesmen. The only other official was the umpire or principal duty consisted of disqualifying players for "slugging." Walter Camp, who was the umpire, but believe it was a Mr. Pease, of Princeton, a ball, solemn, individual. Seems as though the only man Mr. Pease had to put off was Newell, a fullback, Yale guard.

IT was a fierce game of the slapping order and the only scoring came just at the end of the first half.

It has always seemed to us that Yale sneaked one over on Harvard in that scoring. Somewhere on Wurtemburg, the Yale quarterback, was with the ball from scrimmage.

Now the quarterbacks were not allowed to run with the ball from scrimmage in those days. At any rate, Wurtemberg made a run that took the ball to the Harvard five-yard line and on the next play "Bum" McClung was shoved over for a touchdown (four points) and then the same player kicked the goal (two more points).

Before the teams lined up in solidarity for a resumption of play the referee's whistle blew and the half ended.

IN those days the reporters squatted on the side lines or ran up and down the field following the play, and sometimes they were closer to the play than some of the players. As soon as the half ended we rushed out on the field and asked "Allie" how much time remained to play in the first half. "Bum" McClung had scored the touchdown.

"Fifteen seconds," he replied.

NOW you see where that Sunday school stuff comes in, do you not?

HOW easy it would have been for "Allie" Porter a Harvard man refereeing a football game between Harvard and Yale, to have called time with the ball on Harvard's five-yard line!

Who would ever have known the difference?

In those days the referee, who was also timekeeper, was required to notify the captains five minutes before the end of a half that only five minutes remained for play. That was all. No further information in regard to time was allowed by the rules.

FIFTEEN seconds that could be clipped from five minutes! And only one man in the universe—a Harvard man—who knew there were only fifteen seconds to play.

NOWADAYS a hundred—two hundred—reporters are assigned to cover a big football game. In 1889 at Springfield it is doubtful if there were more than ten reporters present. Only two went to Springfield from New York. The other night went from Boston. The writer of these few lines was the only one who asked "Allie" how much time remained after that touchdown. This anecdote has never been printed before.

"HE (Porter) gave entire satisfaction," says Bob Dunbar. We should say he certainly did.

ALL this happened twenty-five years ago. Yale has not yet achieved revenge. Her touchdown in the First Baptist Sunday School. There is yet time. The address is: Corner of Commonwealth avenue and Clarendon street, Boston, Mass.

FED DEAL FOR CUBS BALKED BY MURPHY

CINCINNATI, Nov. 19.—Charles P. Taft, part owner of the Chicago National baseball club, has refused to grant an extension of time on Charles Weeghman's option to buy the club stock and property. Negotiations with the Chicago Federal League magnate were definitely broken off.

Charles Thomas, president of the Chicago Cubs, and Roger Bresnahan, the catcher, were summoned to Cincinnati by Charles P. Taft, owner of the Chicago team, and have left the city. There will be a meeting of the board of directors at Cincinnati and Bresnahan, it is said, will be formally named as manager.

The board of directors consist of Mr. Taft, the owner; Mr. Thomas, the president, and Charles Schmaltzig, secretary of the West Side team.

Charles W. Murphy, former president of the Cubs, and who, it develops, still holds 53 per cent. of the stock, returned to Chicago after conferring with Mr. Taft and announced that Charles Weeghman did not have a verbal or written option on the West Side club.

Mr. Murphy declared the Cubs are worth anywhere from $1,500,000 to $2,000,000. He also said it would be suicidal to take the Cubs from the West to the North side, and paid his respects to the Federal League in the following words:

"The Federals are grasping the ropes and when the men of organized baseball pay any attention to the illfated association they are simply administering financial oxygen to them."

Mr. Weeghman came right back with the statement that he was doing business with Garry Herrmann, chairman of the national commission and Charles P. Taft, owner of the Cubs, and that he failed to see where Mr. Murphy came in.

Cutler and Schaefer Open Billiard Match

Owing to the fact that this is Cutler's home city and he having held the billiard championship of this State for several years previous to his seeking new fields to conquer, he is a great favorite among the followers of the game in this vicinity. This will be his first appearance in Boston in five years, which probably accounts for the great interest aroused in the match. Schaefer is showing all the dash and skill that had made his father the greatest player of his time.

Mack Is Awarded Verdict Over Phillips

TURNERS FALLS, Nov. 19.—Frankie Mack of Beachmont won a decision over Joe Phillips of Providence in a fast twelve-round bout.

In the semi-final Joe Budreau and Johnny Murphy, both of Boston, fought six fast rounds to a draw. In the preliminary, Jerry Italy won the decision over Al Desautels in two rounds.

Lewis Downs Allen on Springfield Mat

SPRINGFIELD, Nov. 19. — Ed ("Stranger") Lewis of Kentucky defeated Bob Allen, Southern heavyweight wrestler in two straight falls in the Auditorium here. Lewis got the first fall in 49 minutes by a spread-eagle hold and the second in 26 minutes by a double wrist lock.

In the preliminary, Ren Sherman of Southampton and R. Thoreson of Springfield grappled on the mat for half an hour, the referee declaring the bout a draw.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Nov. 19.—Etawah, 2:03¼, failed in his effort to reduce the all-age trotting stallion mark of 2:02, held by The Harvester, here. The colt's time was 2:03¼.

Big Pair Matched for Mat Carnival

Eric Arvidson, the giant Swedish wrestler, has been chosen as the best available man to meet George Lurich, the Russian, in one of the three principal matches that will make up the Thanksgiving night card arranged by George Tuohey for decision in Mechanics Building.

Negotiations are now under way for suitable opponents for Waldek Zbyszko and for Isando Ivy, the remarkable Tartar, and the chances are that this matter will be settled shortly.

Promoter Tuohey says that all three of the main events will go to a finish, best two out of three falls, under catch-as-catch-can rules.

Burns-Steiglitz in Finish Match

"Cyclone" Burns and Emil Steiglitz, a 206-pound Bavarian, will clash this evening in a finish match at the Grand Opera House under catch-as-catch-can rules, best two falls out of three. Steiglitz is a new comer to Boston, but is strongly fancied by those who have seen him work as the strong man to give Burns the toughest test of his career. Just now, however, Burns is going better than at his best with over Johansen at Portland, Tuesday night indicates.

FOLKS who want most ale value for their nickels, and know where to get it, make Sterling their favorite brew and see that it is drawn from the blue and white tap. Few good places fail to show it.

The Fortunes of Fanny

Fanny Finds It Hard to Submit to the Sneers of the Other Girls

By Virginia Terhune Van de Water

CHAPTER VIII.

Copyright, 1914, by the Star Company.

IT was eight o'clock in the morning when Fanny Hedden arrived at Madame Ridetti's "Beauty Parlors." Five minutes later Nellie Benson appeared and greeted her kindly.

"I spoke to Madame about you yesterday afternoon," she told her. "She says you can come and learn manicurin' and shampooin'. It will be quite a while before you could do hair work, and perhaps you'd best not try that until you have begun to get pay for doing nails."

Nellie always talked rapidly and dropped her "g's" persistently. She evidently considered time too precious to be wasted on such an insignificant thing as a final letter that did not materially affect the meaning of a word. She chatted all the while that she was removing her coat and hat and showing Fanny where to hang her belongings.

"I'll lend you one of my aprons," she told her. "Tomorrow you can bring one of your own. Oh, here's Toinette! Miss Bryan, I want to make you acquainted with Miss Hedden. I've known her for a long time. She's comin' here to learn manicurin' and shampooin'."

"Pleased to meet you," returned Miss Bryan. (Her name had been O'Brien originally, but she dropped the first vowel and altered the two middle ones when she changed her Christian name of "Annie" to "Antoinette.") "You're taking up hairdressing and facial, too, aren't you?"

She pronounced "facial" "fay-sē-al," a fact which mystified Fanny as to her meaning.

"I may learn hairdressing some time, but not just now," Fanny said. "What is the other thing you spoke of?"

"Fay-sī-al massage," explained Antoinette. "Treating the face, you know—surely you've heard of it."

A light broke upon Fanny's befogged mind. "Oh, yes," she said. "I do not suppose I will take that up for some time—if at all."

As the other girls arrived they joined the group already assembled, all talking at once. But when, a half hour later, Madame Ridetti entered, there was a sudden lull.

Fanny looked with interest at the mistress of the "Beauty Parlors." She seemed like a walking advertisement of her establishment. Her iron-gray hair was very much waved, her face very much "made up," her nails glistened dazzlingly. Her figure was laced into the latest model corset and her dress fitted her with painful smoothness. About her neck she wore an immense lorgnette chain and from her ears dangled a pair of pearl drop earrings. She acknowledged Nellie's introduction of her friend with a languid bow.

ONE OF THE GIRLS LAUGHS AT THE MERE IDEA

"Good morning," she said. "Nellie has spoken to me about you. I am willing to let you learn here if you are willing to make yourself generally useful meanwhile. Nellie will do your nails at first, just to start you and to make your hands look nice. Then you can try and see what you can do on one of the other girls."

Bessie Allen, a plump, happy-go-lucky girl, giggled outright at this remark.

"What are you laughing at?" madame asked, but with no sign of disapproval. She was evidently a calm person who did not give vent to any emotions that might disturb her placid expression of countenance.

"I was wondering who'd play goat first, and he experimented on," the girl said merrily. "The last new girl you had acted on me first—and I sat on a tack all the time."

Madame smiled indulgently. "Well, she never learned anything anyway," she observed. "I hope that Miss Hedden—we will call her 'Fanny' after this—will do better. You girls can explain to her what her other duties will be."

The "other duties," Fanny soon discovered, consisted of washing and sterilizing combs, brushes and manicuring implements, carrying bowls of warm water to the manicuring tables, taking those bowls away when they had been used, bringing fresh towels as often as they were required, and, in fact, "cleaning up" after every customer had been treated. Madame Ridetti's parlors were popular, and, as the day was a fine one, there were many patrons. In fact, the time was so much occupied that when 6 o'clock—the hour for closing—came, Nellie Benson had not as yet had time to "do" Fanny's nails. Fanny mentioned this to her in a low voice as the two girls stood together putting on their wraps preparatory to starting for home.

THERE MAY BE MORE TIME TOMORROW

"I know," Nellie regretted, "but tomorrow there may be more time. You'll have to be patient about it."

"But I haven't learned a single thing all day," Fanny objected. "Yet I have been on my feet every minute."

"Yet," Nellie told her, "if you watched the rest of us at work you must have learned a little somethin' about the methods."

But Fanny was slightly resentful. "I've just done the same things that Emma, the colored maid here, does," she insisted. "I did not come to be another maid."

"Hush!" Nellie warned her as Madame Ridetti came forward to bid her clerks good night. Something in the sudden silence made her glance suspiciously about her, and her gaze rested on Fanny's flushed cheeks.

"What's the matter?" she asked. "Are you tired, Fanny?"

"A little," Fanny replied with diffidence. "I was just saying," she continued, with an unexpected spurt of courage, "that I do not feel as if I had learned much today."

"Oh, well,"—Madame shrugged her graceful shoulders easily—"you'll learn all in good time. Be here early tomorrow morning and perhaps one of the girls will be able to do your nails or to let you practice on her before customers begin to arrive. Good night, girls!"

Fanny gazed after her ruefully. She supposed that the older woman was right in saying that she would learn all in good time. But she—Fanny Hedden—wanted the money now. She had always found it hard to wait patiently for anything. And until now she had never had to wait and learn to work, too.

Electing a Queen Cow

In the Rhone Valley, Switzerland, an extraordinary ceremony is carried out every Summer. This is the choosing of a queen cow by the cows themselves. A large number of cows—there were over 200 this year—are assembled in a field to choose their queen. The queen cow is the one which is strong enough to fight all the other cows off the pasture and remain in possession of it herself. The owners of the cows are not allowed to encourage their beasts in any way.

The honor of owning a queen cow is keenly coveted by the local herdsmen, and they do everything they can in order to turn their animal out a winner. In their eagerness to bring their beasts fit and well on the day of battle, many of the herdsmen feed them for a week or a fortnight beforehand on bread and wine. The cows descend from a fighting race, and are always eager to have a scrap. The "election" of the queen cow often lasts the greater part of the day, and is watched by crowds, who come to the scene from miles around.

"At High Noon" (Of Life)

By NELL BRINKLEY

Copyright, 1914, by International News Service

A BEAUTIFUL old man I know, beautiful and big, with the load of seventy years on his broad shoulders, but not bowing them much, with a crown of hair like drifted snow above his twinkling eyes, a type of old age that we find in verse and the back of our own minds when we think of what we would like to be when we've waved our last at Youth going over the hill. This beautiful old man rapped his cane on the floor and said: "It's all nonsense—this book in my hand—written by Youth or some old chap who's trying to fool himself with the sound of pretty words . . . for it welcomes OLD AGE! And who that tells the truth wants to be old? No one. Not Youth; even while it squares itself and looks valiantly into the years it has a chill up its back, with the thought of lines and drifting snow on its head!

"Who despises age as we do, who can never find our boy-days again? Oh, I pretend to believe that you think I'm as nice as I could ever possibly have been when I strode on Indian pony in the buffalo days—but, oh, my dear—it's the high-noon days that hold all that's best — looking back to them when we are ancients, and reveling in their golden glare when we are there where the clock points sharp at noon!

"There is the instant that holds our dreams, there for a breath the homeliest maid takes on the ghost of beauty, there is all laughter, there is the best love! If we could just hold the black hands there 'til the end. Who cares about dying? I would not care how long or how short a span I lived—if it could only just be at the high-noon of life! Never have I admired the frost; Summer's the luring bait that brings this slow old trout to the surface. And yet do you know?" (and here I twinkled) while he straightened his high, broad chest, "do you know I never felt fitter than I do today—and a man never knows what spice there can be in the warm wine of life 'til he's had a few years piled atop of him!"—NELL BRINKLEY.

"WELL, chance it. I'll not say I've been expecting to hear from you for a long time past. Maybe in a week or a fortnight, maybe a little while, I'll step round to my bank and pay this check in. Then I'll write in a check to the syndicate account. We can have a drink on the way down."

Excited at the prospect of encounter with the hated financial pundit, Erdsley seemed to forget for the moment his discovery in the matrange register. But its full significance was not lost upon Sir Ralph. He walked slowly back from the bank to allow himself time to decide on the course of action. Gisela had fled to Leslie. He at once dismissed the possibility of a divorce having taken place. Leslie had willingly or unwittingly, married his cousin while her first husband was alive; therefore, Gisela was not Varney's lawful wife, Sir Ralph was

To be Varney's heir was not flattering to his self-esteem, seeing that he was so much older than his cousin, and also that a great portion of the property would be transferred by will. If he had made this discovery he would perhaps have kept quiet on the chance of Varney predeceasing him and leaving no will. But in any case that possibility was very remote, and now there was the danger of Erdsley's pursuing his investigations further and establishing the identity of Leslie Morno with Leslie Varney. He must act at once and drive the best bargain he could with his enemy before his confederate forestalled him.

He telephoned to Willton place, and was informed that he would probably find Mr. Varney at his club. He rang up the club and presently heard Oswald's voice.

"I want to see you this afternoon, old chap, on most family business," he said the baronet.

"Family business!" Oswald's tone sounded gruff. "All right, I suppose I must see you. Come round here when you like. I shall be here all the afternoon."

Sir Ralph returned to the office in time to see a short, bull-necked man, clad in a gray frock coat, ascending the stairs to his office. He followed him and the two passed between him and Erdsley. Having disposed of Mr. Smeedle with a substantial check, Sir Ralph took up his hat and leaned over Erdsley's desk. "Give me that certificate," he answered, "and be able to tackle Mrs. Melas this afternoon."

Looking at him somewhat suspiciously, his partner handed him the document. With this in his pocket Sir Ralph drove round to Oswald's, he was driven to Hanks, in St. James street.

Oswald, looking very flatlines and bored, greeted him in the smoking room.

"Glad to see you, my dear chap. I don't know why, but I find the town awfully dull this season, what? The fact is, I miss Leslie. I am going up to Scotland tomorrow to bring her back if I can."

Sir Ralph looked preternaturally grave. Oswald observed him with amused surprise and told him to sit down. He ordered two liqueurs. When the waiter had brought these and gone away he asked what was the matter. "Family matters, I think you said?"

"Yes, Oswald, my boy, I have one of the most unfortunate, most unpleasant family troubles. Where can I begin? I'm deeply grieved on the honor of such and such."

"Heard them! Nothing wrong with Leslie's health, I hope? She was in the best of health and spirits when I saw her last. But I'm concern them very much indeed."

He sighed and finished his liqueur. Oswald drew his chair nearer and whispered in a hoarse voice:

"Well, out with it!" he said. "Leslie is dying or there's a mistake." Began to allow himself time to decide on the course of action. Gisela had fled to Leslie. He at once dismissed the possibility of a divorce having taken place. Leslie had willingly or unwittingly, married his cousin while her first husband was alive; therefore, Gisela was not Varney's lawful wife, Sir Ralph was

"Good heavens, you're not going to tell me that you've been carrying on with a married woman all that time! Why, she was an assistant in a book shop in Bond street—the place is there still. Before that she was a governess. What I want to know is, what are you going to do about it?"

"Well, the fact is, I've never bothered her with inquiries about her past. I think she was a governess or something of that sort. Has any other fellow been carrying on and left her a fortune?"

What Thin Folks Should Do To Gain Weight

Physician's Advice For Thin, Undeveloped Men and Women

Thousands of people suffer from excessive thinness, weak nerves and feeble stomachs when, having tried advertised flesh-makers, food-fads, physical culture stunts and run-on prescriptions, they finally decide being scientific and think nothing can help them. The fact is, there is not one reason in a thousand why a person cannot put on healthy flesh and increased reserve force naturally, if the right methods are followed. Many are languishing for remaining the same old skeleton while, having tried and failed, they are discouraged. It is called hard to put on flesh, but as a matter of fact, any reasonably thin person of ordinary intelligence who has acquired enough knowledge of the human system to understand the principles of nutrition and used its commonest possessions to advantage, can put on healthy flesh in the shortest possible time. Many physicians are now prescribing Sargol, a harmless, concentrated and scientifically prepared combination of certain [illegible] and strength to every [illegible] tested fully in the laboratories of the Sargol Research Laboratories, Auburn, N. Y., and is now being introduced to the general public. Those who are thin should not fail to give this remarkable preparation a trial, as it is said to be unusually successful in producing healthy flesh in a short time. Druggists usually have it or can get it. Write the Sargol Research Laboratories, Auburn, N. Y., for their free booklet.

BUSINESS GAIN IS SHOWN ALL OVER COUNTRY

Trade reports from all sections tell of improvement in business. Many mills are now running overtime to fill orders and commercial establishments report a large increase of sales for the month, compared with this last. War orders have not been a big factor in the betterment of business. There is belief that the corner has been turned and that the United States is going to go ahead in the same manner as it was previous to the commencement of the war. Many of the industrial plants have been working on full time for some time past, principally because of the large orders received from the European countries.

COTTON POOL A SUCCESS.

The cotton pool fund has been over-subscribed, and in announcing the success of this movement to relieve the pressure from the southern banking and planting interests, Secretary of the Treasury McAdoo says: "We believe the prompt filling of this plan is going to be beneficial, not only to the cotton situation itself, but the foreign exchange situation, and also in promoting the general prosperity of the country, which now has such a large impulse that it would be difficult to check it."

The Federal Reserve system had an auspicious opening. In fact it makes a record for the first day's work for the Federal Reserve Board show that of the installation day of the 12 banks there was paid in cash, these being $127,000,000 in gold and $3,000,000 other money. From this it is understood, has not taken up the problem of extending the Reserve banks' resources to the full powers of the act under which they operate. Under the direction of the Treasury has the discretion of depositing the general fund of the Treasury with them, thereby making these banks agents of the government.

ENGLAND AND OUR GOLD.

It has been surmised that in a measure the visit of Sir George Paish to this country as a special envoy of the government has some relation to gold exports. It is believed that this country holds one-fifth of all the gold money in the world. The chief, in London publication which he edits, says:

"Whether it is necessary that the United States should retain all the gold which holds at present is a matter on which we do not feel competent to pass with every confidence that the gold is safe, but lately remains to be seen."

It has been stated, since that was published in the Statist, that American banking sentiment is opposed to hoarding with any more gold, and exports from all international trade. So concerned, exportation of gold, regardless of this country's supply will not be of all necessary a short time hence.

OPTIMISTICS.

Within a week four receipts at Chicago increased about 1,000 bales and the total was the largest in years.

It is estimated that steel manufacturing in this country has increased about 5 per cent. in a week. Foreign demand is slightly improved.

Morse & Rogers of New York have shoe orders from their friends, governments aggregating $2,000,000. The shoes are for the army and are to be delivered in January.

Mules and horses shipped from St. Louis stock yards to France and England since the war began totalled about $2,500,000 in value.

* * *

New York cotton men hear that German mills are all running on either a full of overtime basis.

* * *

European nations now at war are raising immense loans and a large part of the money to be obtained must be spent in the United States for supplies.

In six years resources of trust companies in this country grew from $3,917,442,000 to $5,924,979,000.

* * *

The advance in the price of copper metal and shelter are indications that business is improving in this country, as both reflect an increased activity in several lines of manufacturing.

The St. Paul road will spend within four years $13,000,000 in electrification work in its Rocky Mountain district, in connection with the General Electric Company, involving $2,000,000, will provide for preliminary work.

HOW TO GET ABOARD "GIVE A BASKET" WAGON

There are two ways to "Give a Basket."

One is to get your own basket, fill it yourself with Christmas dinner for an average family and send it to the AMERICAN for distribution.

The other way is to pay for a basket. The AMERICAN figures that to buy and fill such a Christmas basket will cost $2.

Send all the baskets you wish, one or a thousand.

Send all the money you wish, from $2 up.

Remember—If you are sending cash, please send it in as soon as possible, as plans for expenditure may be made.

If you intend to contribute filled baskets, please notify the AMERICAN of your intention now, so that plans for distribution can be made.

Also send names of families which need such baskets, if you know of deserving cases.

Address all cash or basket notices to Christmas Editor, Boston AMERICAN, No. 82 Summer street. Telephone Main 5180.

City's Leading Men Aid 'Give a Basket'

Christmas celebration you propose. Hundreds should respond to your call.

Yours, J. T. A.

Mayor Curley fell the Christmas mail right on its head in the following statement:

War-time charity given by citizens of Boston should not be extended to our own unfortunates.

That the AMERICAN is doing a much-needed work in its "Give a Basket" campaign for the aid of Boston is beyond the slightest question.

Every citizen whose means will permit is under a deep moral obligation to help make this great movement a sweeping success by himself contributing the money needed and by urging upon all of these Christmas dinner baskets to be given to some needy family, with a few cents added to buy some toy that also will bring Christmas cheer into the life of some non-pulsipo child.

If the good people of Boston could read the heart-breaking letters that have come to my office, praying for help, since it was announced that it intended to give less than a thousand Thanksgiving dinner baskets away, they would quickly understand the exigencies of the situation.

Had I the means to do so, I readily could distribute 20,000 such dinner baskets among the needy out-of-works of Boston today, without in any way over-amplifying the needy poor. This being the state of today, with Winter scarcely here, in the name of humanity I urge the more fortunate among us to see that there will be the fearful condition obtaining when Christmas comes—a full month from today.

Give to the needy millions of Europe, if you can, BUT FIRST HELP THE NEEDY POOR in BOSTON, your home city, is my advice to all.

And what is equally important, give early, that the AMERICAN'S plan for Christmas relief in Boston may be carried out in season to insure its city-wide success.

Former Mayor John F. Fitzgerald in sending his check to the fund had this to say:

Christmas Editor Boston AMERICAN:

Dear Sir—I gladly enclose my check for $25 for a Christmas basket. Your idea to "Give a Basket" is a splendid one and should result in making many families happy on Christmas Day. I cannot conveniently attend to all these baskets myself, but I know that you will attend to the matter better than I could. I hope thousands will respond to your appeal.

Yours truly,
JOHN F. FITZGERALD.

3 Otis Windwell, the lawyer, thinks $50 worth of the "Give a Basket" idea. He writes:

Permit me to express my appreciation of your splendid plan of helping the needy in a substantial way at this coming Christmastide. Your "Give a Basket" campaign strikes the right note. Charity, they say, begins at home and I am glad to add my praiseworthy step in this direction.

Mr. Hearst is to be complimented on his efforts to bring home to us, at this time, that we are remembering the war sufferers abroad so generously and deservedly, that we forget our own poor.

I enclose my check for $50.

Ex-Governor John D. Long, Secretary of the Navy under President McKinley, says:

I heartily approve of a movement to relieve suffering at this Christmastide.

"BEGINS AT HOME."

Samuel J. Elder, the great peace purist, endorses the plan heartily in these words:

It's entirely true that the intense suffering across the seas and the generous response to the benefactions for its relief have somewhat blinded us to the suffering at home. The spirit of charity begins first at home and it is well that every effort be taken to relieve suffering here.

John J. Cassidy, past exalted ruler of Boston Lodge of Elks, writes and sent his name in for a $5 contribution when he heard of the "Give a Basket" plan.

Ex-Governor John L. Bates says:

This is a good movement, and I heartily indorse it in making Christmas bright and cheerful for the poor and needy. It is a worthy charity.

Nine girls from the "Belle of Bond Street" company, by selling "Belle of the U. S. A." buttons in Boston, raised $80, half of which goes to the Belle of Bond Street fund to help the Red Cross.

Miss Mabel Paul of Winthrop, president of the Junior Charity Club, praises the AMERICAN for its "Give a Basket" plan.

CLUB MAY GIVE AID.

The Junior Charity Club, numbering about 125 Back Bay and Greater Boston young women, is already considering the possibility of assisting the AMERICAN'S plan by volunteering their services in distributing the filled baskets.

Miss Paul has declared her intention of bringing the matter before the club members at their next meeting, and has given the AMERICAN her personal assurance that she will work to have the club go on the plan. She said:

The AMERICAN has my heartfelt approval of the good work which it is doing. With its immense circulation it is in a position to do a vast amount of good and carry its good cheer to thousands of poor people. I should have the support of all generous-minded people. May kind Providence stir the hearts and pocketbooks of many citizens and so make this beneficient work reach every nook and corner of Boston's poorer districts.

I pledge the AMERICAN my assistance, and will do all in my power to help enlist the Junior Charity Club to serve as a committee to assist in the distribution of the Christmas Baskets.

Many of the girls in the club have machines, and I think they will be only too glad to give of their time and their means to assist the AMERICAN in the work.

ANXIOUS FOR SUCCESS.

At our next meeting on Monday, December 7, I will present the plans and purposes for the adoption by the club. Everybody who can afford it should contribute either a basket, money, or of their own time and personal services to such a perfectly splendid cause.

Although the finances of the Junior Charity Club are very small, with interest at this time, it may be that we can even spare an appropriation for the purchase of the necessary baskets, in addition to giving ourselves to club movement in the line of distribution.

Good luck and abundant success to the AMERICAN'S "Give A Basket" Christmas plan.

Other letters, showing the same lively appreciation of the Christmas relief movement, are:

Christmas Editor, AMERICAN:

Sir—"Give a Basket" Sure!

Every man and woman who has the price of a basket ought to send it in to you, Mr. Christmas Editor. It's a good thing started by a great man. We owe much to Mr. Hearst. May it be the greatest success of all his many successes.

EAGER TO GIVE.

Christmas Editor, AMERICAN:

Sir—The AMERICAN'S "Give a Basket" idea is a dandy. Plug it hard. It's just like other stunts started by Mr. Hearst. Always doing for the people. Hope the plan is no end of success. May you have an over-supply of baskets. Here's the price of a basket from

Christmas Editor, AMERICAN:

Sir—I am glad you are providing for your Christmas fund. It is a most noble charity. I think we should not forget the poor people who live with us and suffer almost as much as ourselves. My best wishes for a splendid fund.

ASK FOR FREE PATTERN AND DO EMBROIDERY

Do not go out of the FREE embroidery pattern the AMERICAN is giving to its girl and women readers.

If not, better call on your newsdealer without delay and tell him you want one.

The free pattern he will give you is a hot-iron transfer daily design, size 10½ inches, and is an example of the more than 200 different designs included in the Embroidery Pattern Outfit now being published by the AMERICAN.

When you call for your free pattern ask your newsdealer to let you see the outfit, too.

You'll agree that it's a remarkable offer consisting, as it does of over two transfer patterns, one beaded embroidery hoop, ten skeins of embroidery silk and floss in assorted colors together with a pamphlet of instructions showing how to make up the designs and how to do them, and how to do to secure this outfit is to clip the coupon printed elsewhere from the Magazine Page of the daily AMERICAN and bring or send them, with sixty-five cents to AMERICAN Pattern Dept., No. 5 Winthrop square, or to any newsdealer (no mail orders) where your Sunday Boston Evening AMERICAN, Coupon does not appear in the Sunday edition.

With Christmas only five weeks away, now is the time when girls are busy making the dainty pieces of hand embroidery so cherished as gifts by their friends during the Christmas time.

The designs for these outfits is therefore, great and as the supply is limited late comers are sure to be disappointed.

Better clip the coupon you will find on the Magazine page TODAY and mail, before getting your set.

Public Ownership of ALL the Boston Terminals Should Be Effected at Once

The public expect from the reorganized Board of Port Directors a very substantial contribution to the development of public ownership of our transportation facilities. However much some men may hesitate publicly to confess it, there is no doubt in the minds of all sensible men that public ownership of our public utilities, especially of our transportation systems, is coming very fast.

Within a year Mr. Charles S. Mellen, who exercised a power in this community over our public utilities which no man ever before enjoyed or ever will again, admitted that public ownership was coming. Mr. Mellen confessed that he had known for some years that it was inevitable, but was surprised at the rapidity with which it appeared to be approaching.

It is also a well-known fact that among men in high financial and corporation circles the opinion is prevalent and growing that the question is not how public ownership can be PREVENTED, but HOW LONG it can be POSTPONED.

Governor Walsh, during his campaign speeches, declared that public ownership of municipal lighting plants was coming, and pointed out that thirty-three cities and towns of the State already did their own lighting with marked success.

The City Planning Board, in a report submitted to the Public Service Commission this month, advocates the public ownership of the passenger terminals in Boston.

Mr. Irving T. Bush, proprietor of the Bush Terminal properties of New York, which are celebrated throughout the country, declared this week in a public address in Boston, "Whether we like it or not, we are drifting into public ownership of certain facilities."

Drydocks, except for the use of warships, have hitherto always been regarded as private enterprises, but now the State, under the direction of the Port Directors, has taken a step forward by building a drydock under State ownership. This is to be one of the largest drydocks in the world, which will cost three or four million dollars.

The Commonwealth Terminal has been constructed by the Commonwealth, through the Port Directors, at a cost of four or five million dollars.

The Port Directors are also committed to the project of building a street car line from Summer street to the new Commonwealth Pier and the Fish Pier at the edge of the water.

It is known that the Port Directors made some investigation as to the cost of operating a State-owned electric light and power plant. What has become of that proposition?

These enterprises were inaugurated before the reorganization of the board. What is the new board doing to carry forward this good work?

A proper view of the transportation question in Boston is to regard it as purely a terminal question. Boston in reality is only a great terminal. To take this view of the question is not to minimize the importance of Boston's transportation problem to the whole transportation system, from the farthest reaches of the country to the terminal in Boston.

Our Boston Chamber of Commerce has asserted that "The most crying defect in the whole Boston & Maine system is the arrangement of its terminals on the northern side of Boston—an inheritance from four different railroads."

The cost of maintaining freight terminals in large cities is the most difficult of all for railroads accurately to establish.

J. J. Hill, railway magnate, has said: "The railway system of the country has broken down at its city terminals."

All authorities on improved railroad transportation agree that the most important feature of modern railway service is centred in terminal improvements. It may be fairly stated that the cost of terminals in large cities is so great, compared with the cost of moving the freight from the terminal to its destination, that the latter factor is by comparison almost insignificant.

The Boston terminals, passenger and freight, of the Boston & Maine Railroad pay six-sevenths of the road's property tax in this State. IT MAY BE SAFELY ASSERTED THAT TERMINAL CHARGES AS AGAINST TRANSPORTATION REPRESENT A RATIO OF TEN TO ONE.

The cost of city railroad terminals has grown so out of proportion to the cost of other features of transportation as properly to become a matter for State consideration.

So long as railroad terminals are privately-owned properties, so long will there be complaint of inadequacy of service. Extensive tracts of undeveloped and waste territory exist in the outlying sections of the city. Much of this is adjacent to tide water and may be reclaimed by filling with the dredged material hitherto hauled to sea.

Desirable room may be created suitable for storage yards for cars and receiving stations for freight. Instead of having one freight terminal at an extreme end of the city, occupying costly land, paying high taxes, would it not be better to establish a number of receiving stations at which freight could be delivered, running out into the country on other cheap land, meeting at transfer stations, where the freight could be assorted and shipped to its final destination?

The railroads will not work out this improvement. It has become a public function. The Port Directors in their comprehensive development of the port should earnestly consider the report of the City Planning Board and the studies of Mr. Bush.

DO YOU KNOW THAT—

Boston stands first in increased public improvements, such as subways, playgrounds, municipal buildings, etc.

DON'T MISS TOM POWERS' ENTERTAINING CARTOONS IN THE SUNDAY AMERICAN.

Foster Coates

All earnest newspaper workers deeply regret his death.

He was an industrious, earnest, conscientious, honorable worker for the public good.

He possessed the great newspaper qualities—enthusiasm, activity, energy, public spirit.

Those that worked under his direction looked up to him with admiration and affection, as many of the best known men and women in the newspaper field will sorrowfully testify.

His colleagues worked beside him, marvelling at his endless energy and great resourcefulness; called upon him often for advice and assistance.

A long life of hard, constant work had not wearied him or dimmed his power. His sudden death is a real loss to the field in which he worked. His memory and example will inspire those that survive him.

Upon his tombstone there should be written the words:

"Energy, honesty, loyalty, ambition."

Women, Hens and Intellect

Dorothy Dix Explains Why the Gentler Sex Tries to Be Silly

By DOROTHY DIX

A GREAT deal of surprise is expressed at the foolish and frivolous attitude and conversation of women, and the fact that so many of them seem to possess the weak and hysterical intellect of a hen.

The question is often asked: "Why is this?"

The real and truly answer is, "Man. Women act silly because that is the way that men prefer them to act."

In reality there are few women as great fools as they appear to be. In proof of this, note that they have sized up man and know that it is fine clothes, and automobiles, and theatre tickets, and soft living, to appear to have nothing on their minds but their latest batch of false hair. Wherefore they conceal their gray matter, and act up to the masculine ideal of feminine idiocy that men admire.

It may surprise men to learn that one of the chief axioms of conduct that a careful mother inculcates into her daughter is that if she has brains she must hide them from men as carefully as she would a hump on her back, and that the test of a woman's cleverness consists in not letting men find out how clever she is.

It is only after a woman is so old that she has abandoned hope of masculine admiration that she dares to throw off her disguise and appear before men as a rational intelligent human being capable of thinking a few thoughts of her own.

Of course, men will deny that they prefer stupid women to bright women. They may even go so far as to declare that they prefer intellectual women, but a man's liking for the society of a clever woman is like his taste for caviar.

As a mere matter of history, men have always discouraged intelligence in women. It has taken a fight of centuries for women to even get a right to obtain a good education. Men have not only thrown every possible obstacle in the way of women developing whatever minds God had given them, but they have made the woman who took an interest in serious pursuits, and who indulged in serious discussions of serious topics, ridiculous by poking fun at her.

Such women were called "blue stockings," and held up as warnings of what man most abhorred in womankind. Such a woman was shunned by men as if she had been a pariah. No matter how pretty and attractive she was, nor what her family position, she had no beaux, no attention, no opportunity to marry. It was actually a greater blight upon a girl to accuse her of being strong minded than for her to be the heroine of a scandal.

What wonder, then, that women have cultivated idiocy instead of intelligence, seeing that the sillier a woman was, the bigger prize she got? What wonder that women have concerned themselves only with foolish, frivolous subjects, seeing that it was only when they chattered like children that men would listen to them?

And this is still true. Men, as a sex, don't want women to be clever, they don't admire clever women, and they won't have anything to do with a clever woman if they can help it. Every girl who takes a college education knows that thereby she is absolutely relinquishing all chances of ever being a belle, and diminishing her chances of marrying by half.

One of the most brilliant men I know, in speaking of a very brilliant woman, said to me once:

"She is the cleverest woman I have ever met, and one of the biggest and the noblest—but not for me! The kind of woman I like is the one who has got about as much sense as a canary bird and who has never heard of anything that happened farther off than the next block."

That is the general masculine ideal. Here and there is an exception, of course, but the great majority of men are so wedded to the feminine fool theory that women find it expedient to cultivate silliness instead of intelligence, and to appear far more idiotic than they are.

For the feminine motto is: "We strive to please."

Lord Roberts' Farewell Message to England

There's a little red-faced man,
Which is Bobs!
Rides the tallest 'orse 'e can—
Our Bobs!
If it bucks or kicks or rears,
'E can sit for twenty years,
With a smile round both 'is ears—
Can't yer, Bobs?

—From "Bobs" by Rudyard Kipling.

Shortly before his death Field Marshal Earl Roberts, the greatest general of his time, wrote an article summing up his experience and knowledge of military affairs which he entitled "The Supreme Duty of the Citizen at the Present Crisis."

This article, which will be printed in full in Sunday's AMERICAN, contains a remarkable prophecy of what might happen to the United States in case Germany wins the war.

The Sunday AMERICAN will also contain an extensive article written by a staff correspondent who has made a tour of Canada to study war conditions affecting New England's northern neighbor.
